

RED COW MORAN HOTEL: HIGHLIGHTING SAFETY SKILLS THESE YOUNG STUDENTS NEED

Roadshow delivers a hard-hitting message to students

DRIVING a car in real life is not a computer game, there's no chance to restart unscathed after a crash. That was the hard-hitting message to 700 Transition Year students attending the recent AXA Roadsafe Roadshow run in partnership with South Dublin County Council and emergency services at the Red Cow

Moran Hotel.

Aimed primarily at Transition Year students in secondary schools, The Roadshow is based on an award-winning format and depicts graphically how a night out can end in tragedy.

The show depicts what happens through driver inexperience and overconfidence with the aim to educate and highlight the various safety skills these young students need before they get behind the wheel of a car.

Using a backdrop of contemporary music, video clips and television advertisements, the story is told by Garda David Barron, paramedic

Tony Kelly, Fire Officer Darren O'Connor and A&E Consultant, Dr Philip D'Arcy.

In 2019, 148 people lost their lives on our roads and 1,243 were seriously injured.

Over half of all fatalities have been either a driver or passenger and one third of all collisions had excessive speed as a factor.
